TOW-OW-OW! HOWLED ROMEO AS HE AND HIS MASTER WERE PINCHED

Fool Mutt Howls Way to Cell and Court, but Both

Are Freed.

Ot. h-h, Romsol"

That's the cry, given with a longdrawn yout at the end of it, that passes surrent as reparties in the Harlem ourt to-day. And it is all because of tured old mutt, whose great-grandother might have been one-third blood-

Thomas Brennon, who is janitor of the tment house at No. 251 West One ndred and Forty-fifth street, was arted last night on a warrant sworn to his wife, charging he was cruel to Before Brennan would consent to his house he said good-by to old twelve years. Romeo howled.

Then Detective Phelan appeared at West One Hundred and Twentyh street station with his prisoner, re was Romeo. The lieutemant at desk ordered Romeo should be cust outer darkness, but Brennan cried y and Romeo howled luguitiously. w, lock the mutt in the tell with "the lleutenant finally ordered, and more Brennan and his Romeo re reunited. Then came time to take Brennan to wrt early to-day. Romeo followed, was barred at the door of the Harat plaintive howi, like the voice of lost soul. Brennan wept again, quietbut with intense feeling.

There really was nothing to do but t Romeo into the prison. Romeo, his ad eyes looking unutterable things, addied up the stairs with his master hen he was taken to the pen in the surtroom, and Romeo sat in the pen shile Magistrate Kernochan heard the "Discharged," said the Magistrate then he had heard all the evidence.

"Yow-ow-ow-oh!" said Romeo.
Brennan rushed over to the pen, emad then man and dog walked proudly wn the aisle and out to the street,
